

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An automatic adjustment system for source current and sink current mismatch. The system includes a startup compensation/setup device to perform initialization current 5 compensation and accordingly implement a control reference table, a determination device to output a control signal according to the control reference table, and a current compensation device to switch corresponding internal switches on and off according to the control signal and 10 complete the desired compensation for source current and sink current mismatch.